Cold-outreach email

For small puzzle-game studios — pair with the indie CV

Replace everything in `{{ }}`. The second paragraph is the one that matters: one specific, honest sentence about their game. Keep it short — this is an email, not a cover letter.

SUBJECT

Puzzle-game programmer (Bean and Nothingness) — open to collaboration

BODY

Hi {{NAME}},

I co-created Bean and Nothingness, a logic-puzzle game that shipped on Steam in 2021 and sits at 98% positive across 198 reviews. I was co-lead programmer on it — C++/SDL/OpenGL, including the replay and undo system and a GUI level editor we shipped through Steam Workshop — and lead puzzle designer, writing 100+ of its puzzles and editing all ~200.

I am reaching out because {{WHY THIS STUDIO — one specific, honest sentence about their game}}. If you are looking for another pair of hands on puzzle logic, tools, or engine work, I would be glad to talk. I am also happy to just trade notes on puzzle design.

A short CV is here: {{LINK}}. The game is at {{STEAM LINK}}.

Thanks for reading,
Jordan Watkins